CASE STUDY • CVM INSIGHTS

Growing BrightTV's Subscription Base

Viewership analytics — what drives consumption, and where the next million subscribers will come from.

Prepared for the CEO & CVM Team

AGENDA

01

The Landscape

Who watches BrightTV and how engaged are they?

02

What Drives Consumption

Demographics, time, geography & content.

03

Fixing Low-Consumption Days

Programming the quiet hours and weekdays.

04

Growing the Base

CVM initiatives to convert, retain & expand.

SECTION 01 · LANDSCAPE

BrightTV at a glance

viewership snapshot — 9,995 sessions across 9 provinces.

9,995	8.7 min	37.5%	4 mo.
Viewing sessions analyzed	Average watch time / viewer	Sessions with NO viewing	Window: Jan – Apr 2016

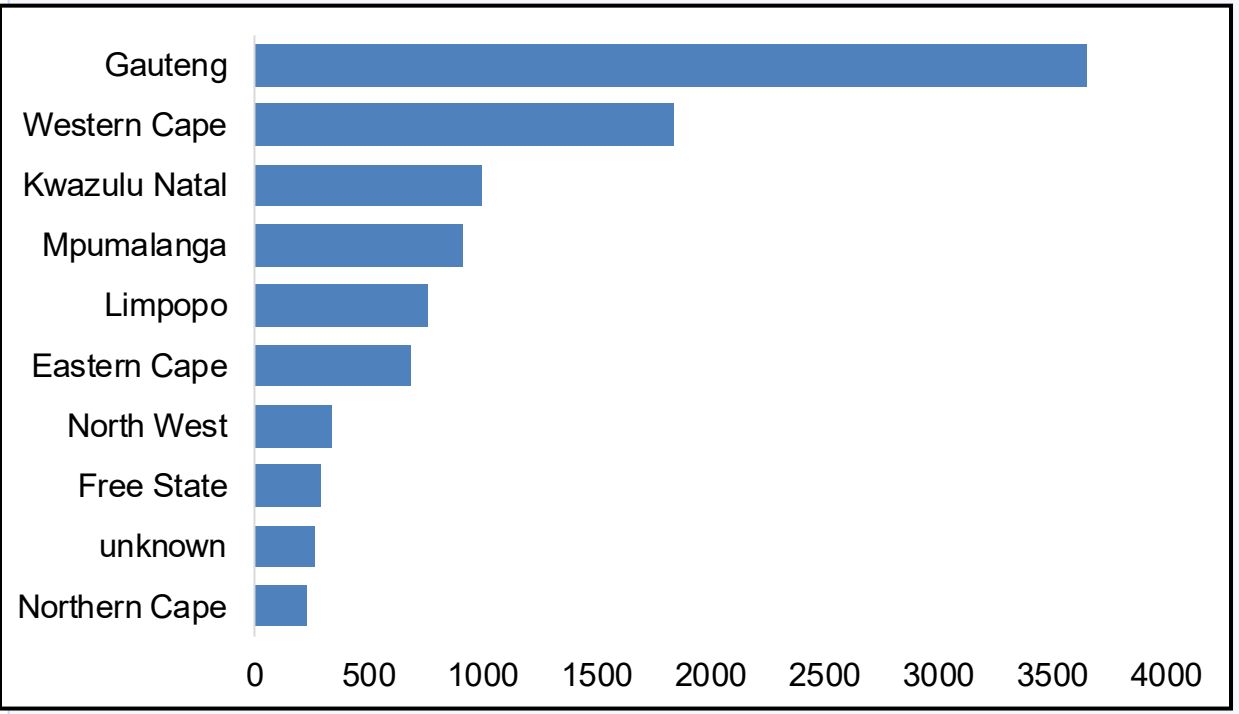
THE BIG TAKEAWAY

Most viewers tune in but don't stay long — 3 746 viewers, result in zero viewing. Engagement, not acquisition, is the real bottleneck.

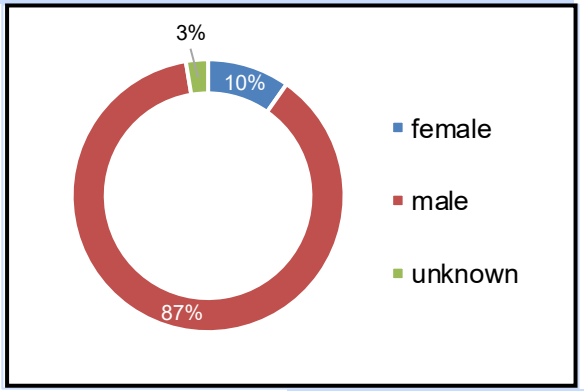
Who is actually watching?

BrightTV's audience is concentrated, black, young, male and 3 Provinces with major cities in South Africa.

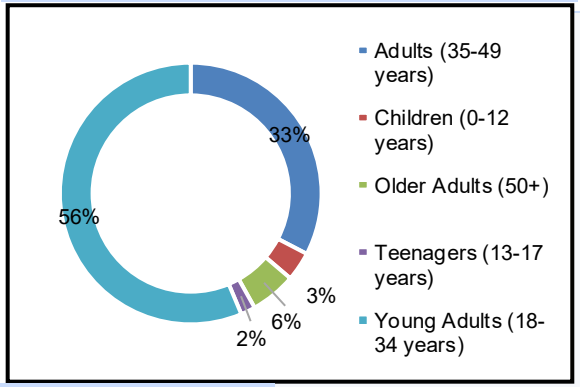
Viewership by province



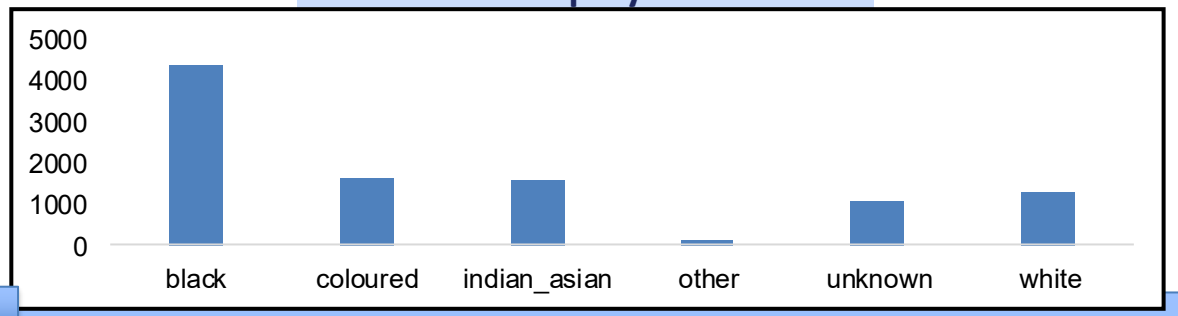
Viewership by Gender



Viewership by Age



Viewership by race



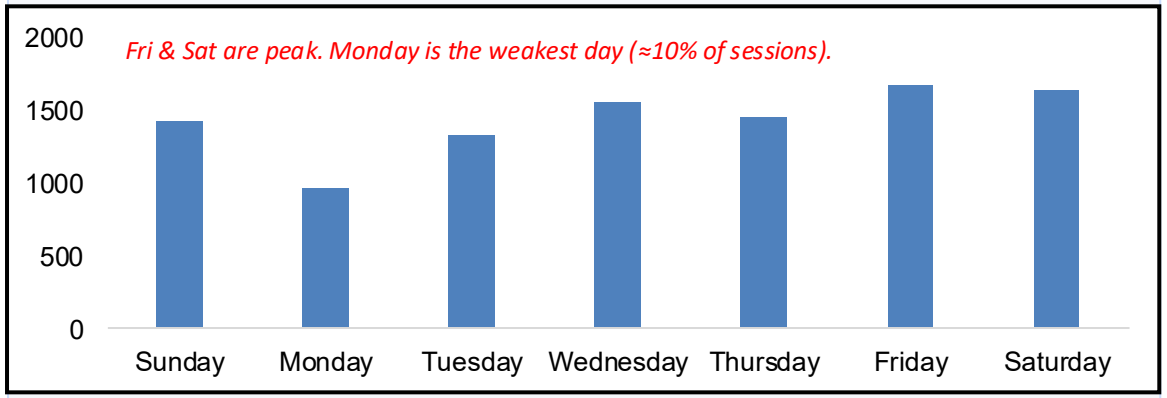
What does it mean

- BrightTV's current audience is dominated by young men (87% male), leaving significant growth potential with women, children, teenagers and older adults (50+).
  - Current viewers: 87% male, only 10% female.
  - Children (0–12), Teenagers (13–17), and 50+ adults are underrepresented compared to younger demographics.
  - These segments represent untapped markets for tailored programming.
  - Purpose-built CVM journeys can drive engagement and subscriptions in these groups.

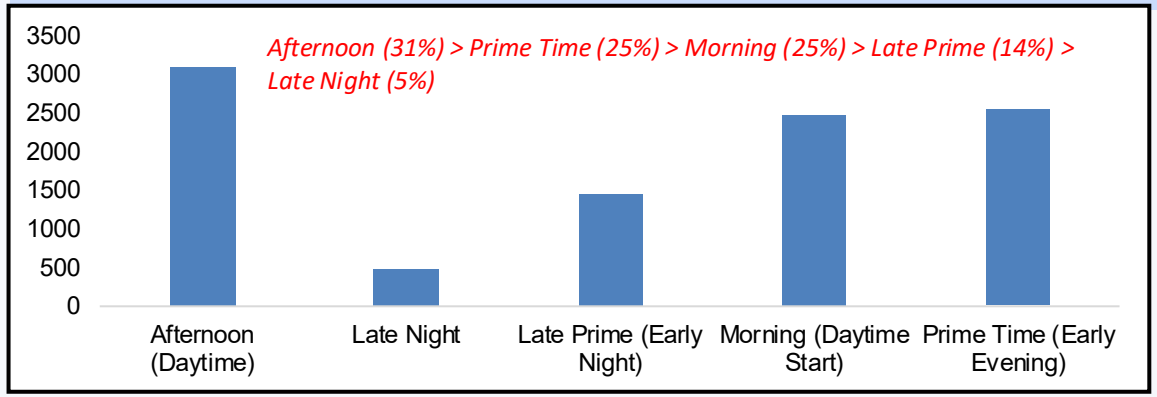
When they watch & what they pick

Sport and music dominate; weekends and prime-time peak.

Viewership by day of the week



Viewership by daytime



Heat map showing channels by average time of watching

Channels	Average_watching_time_in_minutes
ICC Cricket World Cup 2011	16
Trace TV	12
Supersport Live Events	11
Channel O	11
CNN	8
Boomerang	6
SuperSport Blitz	6
E! Entertainment	6
Cartoon Network	5
kykNET	3
Africa Magic	3
DStv Events 1	2
SawSee	2
Live on SuperSport	2
M-Net	2
MK	1
Break in transmission	0
Vuzu	0
Wimbledon	0
Grand Total	9

- SuperSport Live Events: highest viewers (~1,661)
  → This channel had the most people watching overall. It attracted the largest audience in terms of viewers count
- ICC Cricket WC '11: highest engagement (~16 min/viewing)
  → Viewers who tuned into this channel stayed the longest per session. Even if fewer people watched, those who did were highly engaged.
- Channel O & Trace TV: music = strong dual performers
  → Both music channels performed well, showing that music content is consistently popular across the audience.
- Cartoon Network & Boomerang: high reach, very low watch time
  → Many people clicked into these kids' channels, but they didn't stay long. The channels reached a wide audience but failed to keep viewers engaged.

What actually moves consumption?

01

CONTENT TYPE

Live sport & music drive 3–4× the watch time of kids/lifestyle channels.

02

DAY TIME

Prime-time viewings are 2× longer than morning viewings.

03

DAY OF WEEK

Weekends contribute 31% of viewers but with longer durations.

04

DEMOGRAPHICS

Young men in Gauteng and the Western Cape watch BrightTV more than other groups, but their viewing time doesn’t keep increasing

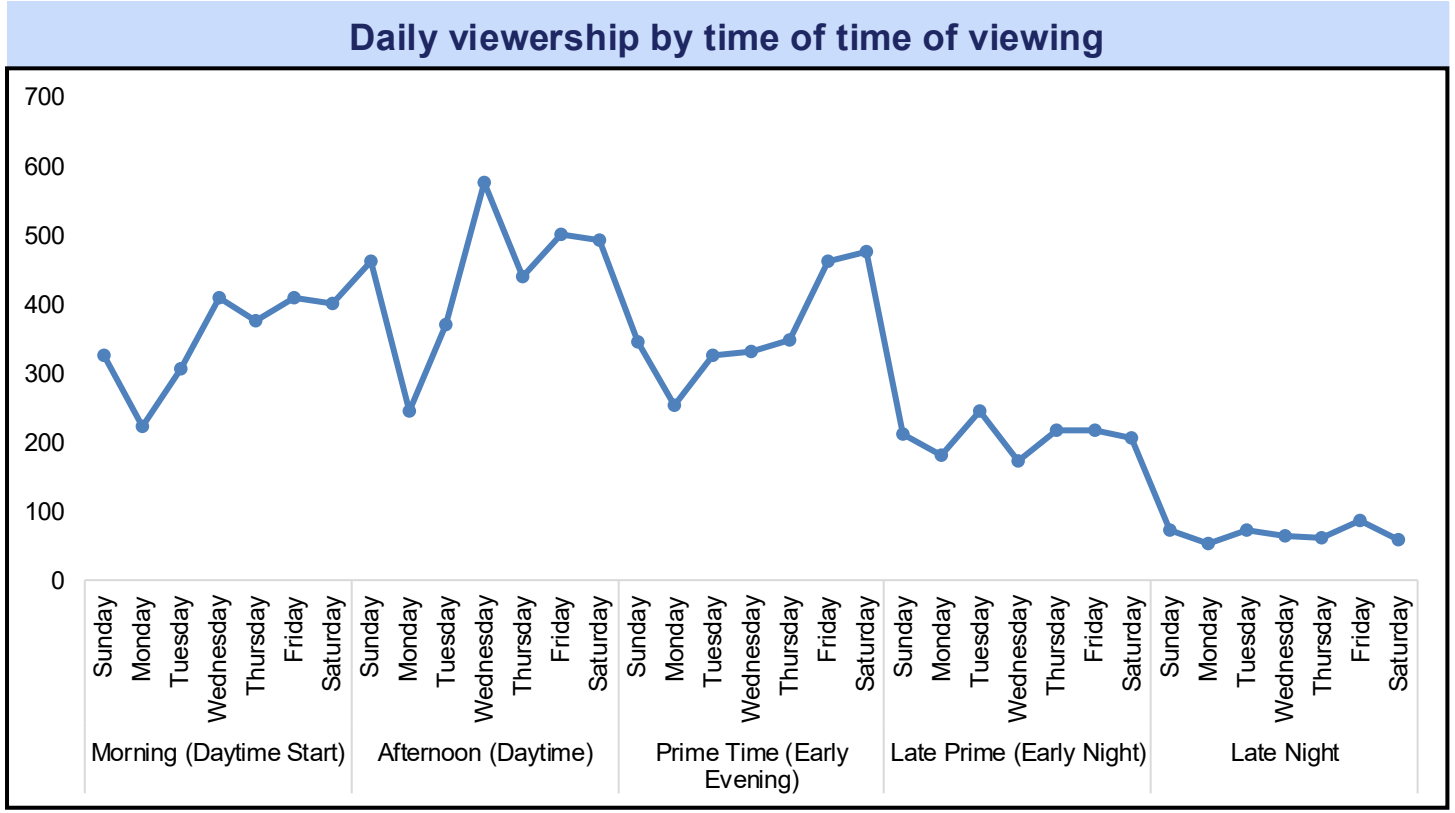
When does engagement actually peak?

Heatmap showing average watching time per day

Day of the Week	Afternoon (Daytime)	Late Night	Late Prime (Early Night)	Morning (Daytime Start)	Prime Time (Early Evening)
Sunday	8	10	7	8	7
Monday	9	10	4	7	5
Tuesday	11	7	7	8	7
Wednesday	11	7	7	6	8
Thursday	11	13	8	9	9
Friday	9	7	8	7	10
Saturday	12	14	8	9	11

- Peaks:
  Friday & Saturday Prime Time → strongest viewing.
  Sunday Afternoon → high engagement.
- Low Points:
  Monday mornings → weakest sessions.
  Mid-week late nights (Tue–Thu) → very little watch time.
- Takeaway:
  Protect the peaks with premium live content & ad inventory.
  Fix the weak spots with tailored programming (Mon evenings, weekday mornings, late-night drama).

Where the quiet days are



QUIET POCKETS

Mondays

Lowest viewers of the week (10%)

Weekday Late-Night

Only 3% of viewers; mostly male 18–34

Weekday Mornings

Good reach, very short sessions

Female 35+ slot

Under-served across all days

Programming the quiet hours

Match content to the audience that's actually online at that time.

MONDAY RECHARGE
Mon 18:00–22:00

Highlights of the weekend's sport (SuperSport Blitz extended)
+ celebrity / lifestyle specials to attract female viewers.

LATE-NIGHT DISCOVERY
Tue–Thu 22:00+

Curated movie nights & on-demand binge windows.
Test international drama for 35–49 segment.

WEEKDAY MORNING BOOST
Mon–Fri 06:00–10:00

Short-form news, music videos (Channel O / Trace) and kids' blocks for school holidays.

FEMALE-LED PRIME
Sun 19:00–22:00

Reality, drama and Africa Magic franchise nights to grow the under-indexed female 25–49 audience.

Initiatives to grow the user base

CONVERT

Acquire look-alikes

- Free-trial campaigns in Gauteng/WC targeting young-adult males via mobile.
- Sports-led acquisition bundles around live events (cricket, football).
- Referral mechanic: 'invite a friend, unlock a premium channel'.

RETAIN

Re-engage the 37% no-viewing

- Personalised 'what to watch tonight' push notifications.
- Win-back journeys for inactive users after 14 days.
- Reward loyal viewers with early access to premiere content.

EXPAND

Unlock new segments

- Female-focused programming bundle (drama / lifestyle / Africa Magic).
- Family & kids plan for the under-served 0–17 segment.
- Provincial expansion plays in Limpopo, Mpumalanga & Eastern Cape.

TAKEAWAY

BrightTV doesn't have a reach problem — it has an engagement problem.

Win the quiet hours, broaden beyond young men in 3 provinces with big cities, and turn the 37% silent viewers into watch time.